

£500 RESEARCH BURSARY

New Gestalt Voices is again collaborating with Relational Change to make available a £500 bursary from the Relational Change community to support a piece of research that explores themes of 'relationality'.

You might already be conducting research in this area or might be keen to start a new piece of research. Whichever is the case, we are keen to hear from you!

You would also be awarded the title of Relational Change Researcher in Residence, with your biography and research topic featuring on the RC website.

- Applications should align broadly with the Relational Change Charter and Statement of Principles, which you'll find here: www.relationalchange.org/charter.html
- It doesn't have to be connected to an academic qualification.
- It can be any kind of research - quantitative, qualitative, textual, etc.
- The project should run for no more than 12-months.
- Anyone is eligible to apply, and applications will be selected on the basis of the perceived value of the research and need for the funding.
- If successful, you will be required to produce a presentation or a short article or video for publication on the Relational Change website, and potentially in the NGV journal, describing your journey and the outcome of your research.
- Payment of the bursary will be 50% up front and 50% at 6-month stage or on completion, whichever is sooner.
- Please note, the research will not be formally supervised by RC, unless arrangements to the contrary are made. As such, the outputs will be wholly the responsibility of the researcher and will not necessarily reflect the views of RC, its leadership team or associates.

To apply, please submit a 1-2 page description of your project. This should include a research question, a brief description of your intended process, and a timetable. If the bursary is contributing to an existing research project, we'd like to know specifically how our support will make a difference.

This should be emailed to research@newgestaltvoices.org by 15 October 2019. The successful applicant will be notified by end of November.
